

About us

Royal Commission Legal Assistance Service

The Royal Commission Legal Assistance Service (RCLAS) provides free, confidential and independent legal support to people who want to engage with the Royal Commission into Antisemitism and Social Cohesion.

Who are we?

The Royal Commission Legal Assistance Service (RCLAS) provides free, confidential legal support to people who want to engage with the Royal Commission into Antisemitism and Social Cohesion (Royal Commission).

We are an independent legal service that is separate to the Royal Commission.

What do we do?

We have staff across Australia who give legal advice, legal information and referrals in a culturally appropriate and trauma informed way. We can assist people prepare and finalise their submission to the Royal Commission.

We provide free and confidential legal advice about:

- Engaging with the Royal Commission, including making submissions,
- Your legal rights when sharing information with the Royal Commission, and
- Legal protections available when sharing information with the Royal Commission

We can talk to you about how you can:

- Share your experiences in a safe way,
- Keep your engagement with the Royal Commission confidential, and
- Overcome barriers you might face in sharing your experiences.

We can connect you to other services that can support you:

We can connect you with other services such as counselling and other legal or non-legal support to help you engage with the Royal Commission.

We can also connect you with other legal services to help you resolve any other legal issues you may have.

Contact the Royal Commission Legal Assistance Service for free, independent and confidential legal advice.
